

NJ Sewer Scopes: A Guide for Smart Homeowners on How to Keep Their Sewers Clean

When you own a home, you have a lot of responsibilities, and taking care of your plumbing system is one of the most common ones that people forget about. People often only think about problems they can see, like leaks or broken faucets. The sewer system that runs below the ground is just as important. If you don't pay attention to it, it could cause serious damage, health problems, and costly repairs. That's why NJ Sewer Scopes are becoming an important service for homeowners in New Jersey.

What is an inspection of a sewer scope?

Using a special camera, a sewer scope looks at all of the sewer lines in a house. An access point, like a cleanout, lets the camera into the sewer system. It then sends high-resolution video to a monitor. This lets the technician check the pipes' condition and find possible problems without having to dig.

Some of the most common problems found during a sewer scope are:

- Blockages caused by grease, trash, or things that don't belong there
- Roots from trees that have gotten into the pipes
- Pipes that are cracked, rusted, or broken
- Parts of the sewer line that are out of line or sagging
- Signs that older plumbing systems are getting older or breaking down

Homeowners can make smart choices about repairs and maintenance by getting a close look at the inside of the sewer system.

Why NJ Sewer Scopes Are So Important

You can't see sewer lines, but their condition has a direct impact on the safety and value of your home. A sewer line that is blocked or broken can cause sewage to back up, damage to water pipes, and even problems with the building itself. By scheduling a sewer scope, you can find problems early and avoid expensive emergencies.

Maintenance to keep things from breaking

The best thing about a sewer scope is that it can find problems before they get worse. For instance, small cracks or roots that get into the pipe can be fixed before they cause the pipe to break completely. This proactive approach saves money and stress.

Saving Money

Fixing a small part of a sewer line is a lot cheaper than replacing the whole thing. Using a sewer scope to find problems early on can save you money on repairs and stop more damage to your home's foundation or landscaping.

Peace of Mind

Homeowners feel better and less worried about possible plumbing disasters when they know that their sewer lines are working properly. Regular inspections make sure that problems that aren't obvious are found before they get worse.

When to Make an Appointment for a Sewer Scope

When buying or selling a house, it's very important to have a sewer inspection. A sewer scope is now needed for many real estate deals to check the condition of the property's plumbing underground.

Experts say that you should get a sewer scope every 3 to 5 years, even if you don't plan to buy a new home. This is especially true for older homes or homes with big trees nearby.

Signs that your sewer system may need to be checked right away are:

- Drains that get clogged often or slowly
- Smelly things coming from the yard or the drains
- Water collecting around the foundation or sewer cleanouts
- Areas in the yard that are uneven or sinking, which could mean that pipes are leaking
